Introduction

Alicia Cullen's practice emphasizes commercial litigation, white collar criminal defense, and False Claims Act matters. Alicia has experience in a wide variety of commercial and government-related litigation involving breach of contract, trade secrets, antitrust, banking, public corruption, economic sanctions, and healthcare matters. Alicia also conducts internal investigations to assist businesses in responding to or avoiding government enforcement actions and employment-related claims.

Prior to joining CE&O, Alicia was a member of the litigation group at Covington & Burling LLP and also served as a law clerk to the Honorable Roger J. Miner on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

Alicia graduated summa cum laude from New York Law School, where she served as a Notes Editor on the New York Law School Law Review. She was a John Marshall Harlan Scholar and received the Anthony F. Jannace Award for Outstanding Achievement. She earned her bachelor's degree summa cum laude from the University of Richmond in French.

Alicia's pro bono work has included representing clients in asylum proceedings. She volunteers regularly with St. Joseph Parish in Seattle.
